iPad hawkers in NYPD bust

Police arrested nine people who were hawking iPads outside two Manhattan Apple stores last week, according to the New York Daily News. The arrests were last Friday, the day Apple came out with its coveted iPad 3. Vendors were camped outside the SoHo Apple store, selling what they claimed were iPads out of the trunk of a car. It is unclear if the products were actual Apple iPads or just knockoffs. ● METRO/CB

Big business

Tim Tebow already has endorsements with Nike and Jockey, but advertising expert Bob Dorfman said he sees him earning up to $2 million in affiliations with a New York car company and financial institution. "The big question is: How much is he going to play?" Dorfman said. "That may affect what sort of serious endorsements he gets." REUTERS

► Clementi

Ravi 'very sorry' about Tyler Clementi

For the first time, Dharun Ravi spoke out Thursday after he was convicted of a hate crime last Friday.

Ravi set up a webcam to spy on his roommate, Tyler Clementi, who was gay. Clementi later found out and jumped off the George Washington Bridge in 2010. Ravi faces as many as 10 years in jail at his May 21 sentencing.

In an interview with The Newark Star-Ledger, Ravi vowed to appeal and insisted he did not regret bypassing a plea offer that would have kept him out of jail if he pleaded guilty to bias intimidation charges.

"I'm never going to regret not taking the plea," Ravi said. "I would have had to testify that I did what I did to intimidate Tyler and that would be a lie. I won't ever get up there and tell the world I hated Tyler because he was gay, or tell the world I was trying to hurt or intimidate him because it's not true."

He said a tweet he sent suggesting that friends tune in to see Clementi was a joke. He also expressed regret that Clementi committed suicide. "I'm very sorry about Tyler," he said. "I want the Clementis to know I had no problem with their son." ● METRO/AB

Construction worker killed in building collapse

HARLEM. A construction worker was killed Thursday morning in an uptown building collapse. The FDNY reported that one person was killed and two others were injured in a building collapse at 130th Street and Broadway. Workers were reportedly preparing to demolish the building when it suddenly collapsed shortly before 8 a.m. The Harlem building is owned by Columbia University and is part of their planned expansion. ● METRO/AB

Synthetic pot a growing problem

NEW YORK. Officials continued their fight to stop the sale of synthetic pot, which is widely available across the city. Queens Councilman Peter Vallone plans to introduce a bill to ban synthetic marijuana. Synthetic pot is sold as herbal incense or potpourri around the city, and the drug can be dangerous, some experts say. It is advertised in packets with names like "Aroma" and "Killer Buzz." ● METRO/AB

John Edwards denies a claim he met UES hooker

► Former US senator fires back at story that he patronized prostitute who was part of Upper East Side sex ring ► Report claims a one-night Manhattan rendezvous in 2007 ► Demands a retraction, site refuses Former U.S. Sen. John Edwards fired back Thursday at a news site that reported he was a client of the Upper East Side prostitution ring allegedly run by Anna Gristina.

A high-end hooker who allegedly worked for Gristina, the so-called "Millionaire Madam," said she was paid to have sex with Edwards during his campaign for U.S. president, sources told DNAinfo Thursday.

The two hooked up in 2007, the call girl claims, when Edwards came to New York City as part of his presidential campaign to try and drum up donations.

The two allegedly had one rendezvous at an unnamed Upper East Side hotel, according to the report.

But Edwards' lawyer, Allison Van Laningham, told various media outlets Thursday the report was "false and defamatory."

"Mr. Edwards categorically denies that he was involved with any prostitute or service. These allegations are false, defamatory, and he puts those who would publish or repeat them on notice that they [are] acting with actual malice by reporting or repeating them," Van Laningham said in a statement.

"He has demanded a complete retraction from the only source being quoted," the statement added. Edwards' lawyer, Abbe Lowell, also called DNAinfo on Thursday and demanded a retraction, the website reported, to which they refused.

The report cites "sources" who said the call girl provided detailed accounts of their hookup to the Manhattan district attorney's office in 2008. That's when the Manhattan DA first began investigating Gristina's alleged sex ring.

► No criminal charges have been filed against Edwards.

Facing federal trial for Rielle

► The former U.S. senator is currently the subject of a looming federal trial in North Carolina. Prosecutors say he used about $1 million in campaign donations to cover up an affair with videographer Rielle Hunter. Edwards is facing charges for breaking federal campaign finance laws, to which he has pleaded not guilty.

► Hunter

Report promises more names

Despite his strong denials, Edwards may not be the last big name to come out as allegedly part of the high-end sex ring, where hookers were paid up to $2,000 a night. Clients of Anna Gristina, who is currently being held at Rikers, include an internationally known billionaire, Wall Street hedge funders and even a Middle Eastern sheik, claims DNAinfo. ● METRO/CB

Where Edwards stayed in NYC

According to DNAinfo, Edwards would stay almost once a month at the Loews Hotel Regency on Park Avenue. That same hotel is also where Edwards reportedly met with Rielle Hunter, with whom he carried out an affair while his wife, Elizabeth, was battling cancer. Edwards denied fathering a love child with Hunter in 2007, but he later admitted he was the father of her baby girl. ● METRO/CB

Jogger finds body in Long Island woods

Another body was found in Long Island, cops said Thursday.

Suffolk County police reported that a jogger found a body in the woods in Manorville on Wednesday. Cops said Thursday that the body was a woman of an unknown age, and the remains had not been in the woods very long.

Detective Jack Fitzpatrick, commanding officer of the Suffolk County Police Homicide Squad, told reporters that they do not think the body is related to a serial killer they say is responsible for a string of bodies dumped by the water in Long Island, including those near Gilgo Beach.

"Nothing at all indicates a connection," Fitzpatrick said, according to Newsday.

"My opinion is that it's very unlikely that it's one person."

DETECTIVE JACK FITZPATRICK, ON THE THEORY THAT THE GILGO BEACH KILLER IS ACTING ALONE

Homicide detectives are combing the scene, cops said, and officials are waiting on an autopsy. Fitzpatrick told Newsday earlier this month that he wants to take a fresh look at the unsolved mystery of the Gilgo Beach serial killer. Remains were also found last month in Manorville, which police said were also unrelated to the investigation. ● METRO/AB

► A taxpayer advocacy group blasted what they say are outrageous pensions for some state workers.

Group: Scale back lavish NY pensions

A report released Thursday by the group Taxpayers United of America accuses state government employees of getting way too much in their retirement pensions. One schoolteacher on Long Island, for example, could stand to collect nearly $12 million in retirement, the group alleges.

Another retired State University of New York employee has an annual pension of $186,295, and another state employee's annual pension is $173,651, according to data obtained by the group.

In the city, a former New York City family court employee receives a pension of $119,731.

The group said the numbers are absurdly high compared to $36,000, the average personal income of state private sector workers.

"Many government retirees make more in pension payments than the private sector taxpayers make in salaries," lamented the group's vice president, Christina Tobin.

Gov. Andrew Cuomo supported a new pension plan, passed by the Legislature earlier this month, that would decrease benefits for future government employees.

In remarks supporting Cuomo's plan last month, Mayor Michael Bloomberg said that in 2002, pension costs for that year alone were $1.5 billion. Now, they are more than $8 billion each year, he said. "Pension costs are spiraling out of control," he said.

But cutting pensions is not popular — New York City public workers protested in Zucotti Park against pension cuts earlier this month.

POLITICAL WORLDLINESS FOR AN IMPOLITE WORLD

@METROPOLITIK

For complaints, suggestions and digital attaboys, e-mail us at brayden.simms@metro.us.

In February 2010, two years after the election of President Barack Obama and two years into the recession-inducing financial collapse, a billboard appeared in Wyoming, Minn.: a huge photo of former president George W. Bush asking, "Miss Me Yet?" At that point, most U.S. citizens, Republicans included, were not ready to admit any hint of nostalgia for the presidency that oversaw 9/11, started two deficit-busting wars in the Middle East, tanked the nation's finances with massive tax cuts for the rich, preached deregulation on Wall Street and made torture sound like a day at the beach. In 2008, as candidates scrambled to distance themselves from the toxic legacy, W. was a nonentity and "Bush" was reduced to a four-letter word.

Now that veneer of shame has begun to creep away.

On Wednesday, Mitt Romney invoked the great decider in the grand GOP game of spinning bad news as Obama-related and good news as meaningless coincidence. "I

GET FED

Just the headlines, and nothing more:

- "Illinois primary win may have turned the tide for Mitt Romney" LA TIMES
- "Rove vs. 'Showdown': He Says OBL Raid No Big Deal" MOTHER JONES
- "On Twitter, Everyone Hates John Edwards" BUZZ FEED
- "In U.S., a growing unease at mixing politics with prayer" REUTERS
- "Is Mitt Romney the Most Unpopular Likely Presidential Nominee Ever?" THE DAILY BEAST
- "For some conservatives, even Ryan does not go far enough" WASHINGTON POST
- "Who's Mitt really conning?" SALON
- "Biden in 2016? Not so crazy" POLITICO keep hearing the president say that he's responsible for keeping America from going into a Great Depression," Romney said. "No, no, no. That was President George W. Bush."

Romney here refers to the Troubled Asset Relief Program, the poorly negotiated federal bailout program that attempted to avert a more severe recession through billions in government giveaways to the financial sector. (Apparently the federal government can spend taxpayer money to restore the economy only under a Republican presidency.) Of course, Romney pointedly ignores the successful auto bailouts, which he strongly opposed, and other stimulus measures that injected much-needed dollars into the U.S. economy to save millions of jobs. Clearly, some memories are more readily recalled than others.

Then there's the matter of Karl Rove, whom Bush credited as "the architect" of his 2004 election, the brains behind the old "Mission Accomplished" ruse. This man, who could teach a washing machine a thing or two about spin and who is pulling the strings of American Crossroads — the super PAC "100 percent dedicated to rescuing our economy from the Obama agenda" — is trying to pass himself off as an objective journalist.

In a Wall Street Journal op-ed Wednesday, Rove set out to dispute the claims of a new Obama re-election video, questioning everything from the fact that the president faced a serious economic crisis to the very existence of cause-and-effect itself. Rove dedicates his space in the Murdoch-owned paper to downplaying any Obama successes and propping up the Bush regime.

But then, what else do you expect from these masters of lies? Romney and Rove want us to forget all about what came before so they can mold the future in their own distorted image. So tell us, readers: Do we miss Bush yet? Are we ready for another dose? Are we ready to forget?

WEEKEND

- ▶ How 'The Hunger Games' has changed Jennifer Lawrence's life and future
- ▶ The star manages to remain calm about the 'Twilight'-esque hype
- ▶ She just might need to make sure her weapons are put away a little more carefully now

▶ Jennifer Lawrence, as Katniss Everdeen, stands among the children to be selected in a lottery for the Hunger Games, a televised battle to the death in a dystopic United States.

Follow us

How would you fare in the Hunger Games?

We asked some of our favorite comedians on Twitter.

▶ Baron Vaughn (@Barvonblaq)
"I would lose in the Hunger Games the moment I got hungry."

▶ Lizz Winstead (@lizzwinstead)
It depends if there are cigarettes...

▶ Jeffery Self (@JefferySelf)
"If 'The Hunger Games' were real I would definitely be the first person killed. Immediately followed by Fiona Apple and Jojo."

▶ H. Alan Scott (@HalanScott)
"About 45 seconds. Maybe 50. I'd be killed just as I was trying to figure out how to properly pronounce Katniss. 'Is the 'T' silent?' Or possibly as I learn how to shoot a bow and arrow."

Tweet us! Tell us how you would do, using the hashtag #MetroGames

"The Hunger Games" has changed Jennifer Lawrence's life in at least one way: She's armed now. "I mean, I still have arrows in my car," Lawrence admits. (Her character in the film, Katniss Everdeen, is a talented bow-hunter, so Lawrence has had to master archery.) "I didn't realize that until two of my friends were getting into the backseat of my car and they were like, 'Why do you have spears back here?' In case I get pulled over!"

Lawrence made such an impression in the critically acclaimed "Winter's Bone" — as a hard-luck teen who must provide for her impoverished family — that producers of "The Hunger Games" immediately thought of her for Katniss, a hard-luck teen who must provide for her impoverished family. "White trash with too much responsibility," Lawrence says, comparing the characters, a mischievous grin on her face. "My publicist doesn't like it when I say that."

Lawrence had hesitations about taking the role — and was even close to turning it down outright. "It was so big. I love my life, and there's not a lot of times in a person's life where a yes or no decision can change your life forever and it will never, no matter what, go back to the way it was before.

Is 'Games' the new 'Twilight'?

It's no secret that many are looking to "The Hunger Games" as the new young adult mega-franchise, what with "Twilight" tying up its prolonged victory lap later this year. And parallels have already been drawn between Lawrence and "Twilight" lead Kristen Stewart, an indie actress whose life was transformed by her sudden blockbuster success. But Lawrence is surprisingly immune to the hype that's been built up.

▶ "I kind of feel like an idiot because I haven't even thought about it," she says. "Everybody is like, 'The movie is coming out!' And I'm like, 'Yup.' I'm going to look back at myself five years from now and be like, 'You were an idiot. You had no idea what was about to happen.' I just feel this calm because there is nothing I can do. It's kind of like when you say something and that quote is being written — it's kind of like you immediately go into this calm of like, 'Well, there is nothing I can do now!'"

And that was terrifying to me," she admits. "Even from a professional standpoint, I wanted to continue to make small passion projects that I love, and I still want people to be able to lose themselves in my characters. I don't want people to watch something and go, 'Oh yeah, look at what Katniss is doing. Oh, Katniss is wearing a dress.' I didn't want that, but I realized that all of the no's just had to do with me being scared. I didn't want to miss out on something just because I was scared."

METRO WORLD NEWS IN LOS ANGELES

Fan-made map: 'Hunger Games'

The world of Panem has captivated "The Hunger Games" fans. Now, thanks to a dedicated writer-turned-cartographer, readers can visualize what the fictional region looks like. The meticulously researched map was created by a previously published fiction writer who goes by the pen name V. Arrow.

How she placed the districts

Arrow took clues from the book — North America was said to be destroyed by a cataclysmic event; District 12 is said to have once been Appalachia. She used a phi spiral — a logarithmic shape that gets wider by every quarter turn — to place the evil Capitol in the center. The rest was just guesswork.

Quoted

"I was interested in how different the story was from the [typical] unification of a country."

The whole project took V. Arrow and her friend about four and a half days combined to research and six to seven hours to draw out. But she's been tinkering with details over the last six months to make it more scientifically accurate.

This isn't her first world map

Arrow also completed one detailing the world of "Matched" by Ally Condie. But the Panem map will always hold a special place. She was especially proud that the A.V. Club wrote about her efforts, even though they did mention she might be a bit crazy. "I consider it a nerd badge of honor to be called a 'fruit loop.'"

Behind the art

V. Arrow considered doing a map of the clock arena from "Catching Fire," but thought it wouldn't be a big challenge.

In her upcoming book "The Panem Companion," Arrow details the sociological and psychological implications of Panem. ● METRO

Kardashian opens up about her divorce

Kim Kardashian opened up to Jay Leno about her quickie marriage to Kris Humphries on Wednesday night. It was a lot of what you'd expect: It was nobody's fault, "she still believes in love," blah, blah, blah. Basically, Kardashian did a great job of making a divorce sound as un-juicy as possible (which is very hard to do).

"I'm a girl who really believes in love, I'm in love with love and I thought this was it for me," she told Leno, never referring to Humphries by name, only as "someone else." The 31-year-old said that when she "realized [the marriage] wasn't [what] I thought," she "tried to be really respectful of everyone involved."

"I've heard stories of people who were married for 10 years and they knew it wasn't right, but they wanted to stick it out and had kids," she said. "I want that forever. I believed in love, I still do. But to be fair to everyone, I knew I had to end it, and I'm OK with that decision."

"I'm a girl who really believes in love. I'm in love with love."

KIM KARDASHIAN

I'm glad she still believes in love. And I rest easy at night knowing she probably also still believes in the kind of love that she can make the most money off of.

Houston cause of death: Accidental drowning

In their official cause of death report, released yesterday, the L.A. County coroner concludes that Whitney Houston died from accidental drowning but that heart disease and cocaine use were also factors when she died on Feb. 11.

The report also states that at the time of death, the singer had cocaine in her system, although investigators found no evidence of cocaine in her room.

TMZ.com states that a source "close to the investigation" says that it's still "very possible" that Houston had a heart attack that caused her to lose consciousness and drown.

Talking points

Madonna making Russian waves

Madonna is set to return to Russia on her tour this summer, and the planned visit is already causing controversy, as the pop icon says she plans to defy a new statute in St. Petersburg that outlaws promoting homosexuality. "I will come to St. Petersburg to speak up for the gay community and to give strength and inspiration to anyone who is or feels oppressed. I'm a freedom fighter," Madonna said in an e-mail, according to Bloomberg. "I don't run away from adversity. I will speak during my show about this ridiculous atrocity." Madonna is scheduled to perform in Moscow on Aug. 7 and St. Petersburg on Aug. 9.

Kelly and Valderrama: An item?

Minka Kelly and Wilmer Valderrama have been turning heads with their public displays of affection, according to Us Weekly. The rumored couple popped up at Greystone Manor Supperclub in West Hollywood, where "they were kissing and grinding," a source says. "They were very flirty and dancing close. They even left with each other." The pair were also spotted at Disneyland last month and having dinner earlier this month. So how serious are things getting between Valderrama and Kelly, who split with Yankees star Derek Jeter last year? "I wouldn't say they're boyfriend and girlfriend," a source says. "But he's started ignoring calls from some of his other girls."

Tebow has his eye on Agron

NFL star Tim Tebow, who was traded to the New York Jets this week, apparently has things besides football on his mind. Tebow reportedly has his eye on "Glee" star Dianna Agron, despite the actress' ongoing relationship with "Captain America" sidekick Sebastian Stan, according to Fox News. "Tim has made no secret that he likes Dianna, and told her so, but she has remained faithful to Sebastian," a source says. A rumored split between the couple may be just the opening Tebow needs, even if Agron's rep says reports of a breakup with Stan are "not true."

Rimes to judge 'The X Factor'?

Dianna Agron

Eddie Cibrian confirms that wife LeAnn Rimes has been in talks about joining the judge's table on "The X Factor," according to Extra. "They've been talking. I have no idea what's going on with that. I think they've been talking to a lot of people," Cibrian says. "I think she would be unbelievable."

What will happen when 'Mad Men' returns? In one word: 'Change'

► 'Surprises,' 'lust' and 'envy' also describe Season 5, say the series' creator and cast ► Of course, that describes any season of this sophisticated period drama

When we sat down with "Mad Men" creator Matthew Weiner and stars Jon Hamm and John Slattery leading up to Sunday night's Season 5 premiere, we knew specific storylines were off-limits conversation with this plot-guarding group. So to gain insight into what our favorite cigarette-smoking, martini-swilling advertising executives of the 1960s are up to, we asked for the best words that describe the new episodes. The "Men" break down the Top 5.

1 Change: "Every season seems to be about how we deal with change," admits Weiner, who wrote Sunday's two-hour premiere. "That's part of why I picked that period [for the show's setting], but it's also why I tell you how old everybody is in the show. I say the ages of the characters specifically and you can start identifying with them. They are growing."

Another shift has occurred in Weiner's own understanding of the series he created.

"At first I thought I'm just writing about something interesting, which is the process of living and the process of history moving on and how we experience it," he says. "Now I realize this is not me being 46 years old saying, 'I just got used to the world and it's changing under me.' We're in the midst of some kind of massive change, and I don't think there's any other thing to write about."

2 Surprises: The "Mad Men" characters surprise viewers on a regular basis — secretive ad man Don Draper in particular, who impulsively proposed to his secretary in last season's finale. And while the dapper Don even catches the actor who portrays him off-guard sometimes, Hamm says the man in the impeccably tailored suit never surprises himself.

"He's a creative guy," says Hamm. "He's an interesting guy. But I think he is very aware of who is he, even for a guy who is ostensibly somebody else. I think it's a big part of what his central darkness is all about. He knows himself too well — and he's not a fan."

3 Lust and envy: "Those are two words you can use to describe every season," says Slattery, who plays longtime agency partner and ladies' man Roger Sterling. "It's a competitive place filled with dissatisfied people. Lust is something that you could ascribe to every one of them somewhere along the way, and it remains. The problem with both of those conditions is that they sometimes land you in situations that are difficult to navigate."

4 Happy and content: "Don's surprisingly content," Hamm says of his character's headspace when Season 5 opens. "As much as that can be a good thing, I think that sometimes it's not. He's aspiring to be happy and content. ... [But] what happens when you get what you want?"

Don's definitions of "happy"

and "content" have never lined up with the typical American dream. Their meaning "is changeable for him," Hamm says. "That's the problem with Don — he thinks he wants one thing, and maybe he was wrong."

5 Success: Weiner reiterates that "change is happening very rapidly," not just on "Mad Men," but in 2012, too. "The country has had a huge blow to its self-esteem," he says, drawing parallels to the wars and revolutions of both eras. "Success will come," he says, "and we may not even be able to recognize it."

He's talking about success both in his characters' — and viewers' — professional and personal lives.

"Success is such a product of expectation," he says. "When you set the goal, you can get the goal. But even the delay of getting the goal can take away the feelings of success."

5 Questions for costume designer Janie Bryant

The new season of "Mad Men" has been shrouded in CIA-like secrecy. As the premiere date draws closer, we try our best to extract a few clues about what to expect from costume designer Janie Bryant.

Now that we're just days away from the season premiere and the cast photos have been released, what can you reveal about the look of the characters? How has their wardrobe evolved since last season?

Honestly, I'm sworn to secrecy until the premiere on March 25. You'll have to wait and see! Okay, how does the new "Mad Men" collection for Banana Republic reflect the look of Season 5?

Our second collection was inspired by the characters while at the club, because of the fun contrast to the home and office settings. It's about an era of lounging poolside or attending a Fourth of July barbecue in a crisp blue polo shirt and stunning the crowd in a lush ivory dress.

Were you obligated to design it in such a way that wouldn't give away too many details about the actual show?

For this collection, [Banana Republic creative director Simon Kneen] and I talked a lot about the characters and scenes that inspired us, the roles they were playing [and] the emotions they're going through, and [we] worked to translate all that context into beautiful design. We stayed with the traditional "Mad Men" look that viewers have come to love.

The new collection manages to feel both vintage and very 2012.

It was about taking a vintage look and updating it with a modern twist. We took some of our favorite trending colors and prints, like the bright pinks and large florals in some of the women's pieces, and fit them on a '60s silhouette, like a capri pant or nip-waist dress.

The first four seasons of "Mad Men" helped spark a global obsession with the mid-century way of dressing, influencing an entire season of ready-to-wear collections. Do you think Season 5 will do the same thing for late '60s dressing?

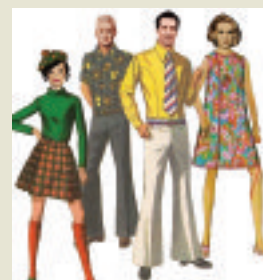

People identify with the costume design of the characters and there has already been a clear resurgence of 1960s trends on runways this spring. Beautiful, dressed-up tailoring with emphasis on the waist, bright colors for ladies and tailored, slim-cut apparel for men are all making a comeback.

Don Draper in bell bottoms?

The new season of "Mad Men" is just days away, and from the look of things, the show will pick up in the late 1960s — that means a whole new time period's worth of wardrobe possibilities for Don, Betty, Roger and Peggy. We imagine what they'll be wearing.

Passover recipe

Kosher for breakfast for Passover

Matzo brei, a favorite at the Passover table and a regular menu item at Jewish delicatessens, can be served sweet or savory. This sweet version starts with crushed matzo softened with water and mixed with eggs. The mixture is then packed into a buttery pan and fried on the stovetop until browned and crispy. Slice it into wedges, sprinkle it with cinnamon-sugar and spoon on an easy topping of roasted cherries flavored with vanilla and orange for a delicious, kosher breakfast.

Matzo Brei with Roasted Cherries

Ingredients

For the cherries:

1½ cups fresh or frozen and thawed sweet cherries (about 7 ounces), pitted and ► Bake this yummy breakfast this holiday.

halved
¼ cup granulated sugar
½ teaspoon finely grated orange zest
2 tablespoons freshly squeezed orange juice
½ teaspoon vanilla extract

For the matzo brei:

5 (6½-by-6) sheets unsalted matzo, broken into 2-inch pieces
1 cup hot tap water
¾ large eggs
¾ teaspoon kosher salt
5 tablespoons unsalted butter ground cinnamon and granulated sugar, for sprinkling (optional)

Directions

For the cherries:

1 Heat the oven to 425°F and arrange a rack in the middle.

2 Stir all of the ingredients together in a 9-inch pie plate and spread the cherries into a single layer. Roast, stirring occasionally, until the cherries are softened, juicy and bubbling, about 20 minutes. Remove the pie plate to a wire rack and set it aside to cool. Meanwhile, make the matzo brei.

For the matzo brei:

1 Place the matzo pieces in a 13-by-9 baking dish and spread them into an even layer. Add the water and gently stir until the pieces are evenly moistened. Let sit until the water has been absorbed, about one to two minutes.

2 Whisk the eggs and salt in a medium bowl until the eggs are broken up. Pour the egg mixture over the softened matzo and stir to combine.

3 Melt the butter in a large nonstick frying pan over medium heat until foaming. Add the matzo mixture and, using a rubber spatula, press it into an even layer. Cook undisturbed until the bottom is golden brown and the mixture is set, about five to seven minutes.

4 To flip, slide the brei onto a large plate. Place a second large plate upside down over the brei and invert it onto the second plate. Slide the brei back into the pan and reshape it if necessary with the rubber spatula. Cook until the second side is golden brown, about seven to eight minutes more.

5 Slide the matzo brei onto a cutting board and slice it into wedges. Transfer the roasted cherries and their juices to a serving bowl. Serve the matzo brei warm, passing the roasted cherries and any seasoning on the side.

Dance review

Rattling around at the Koch

Paul Taylor, who's been making wonderful dances for nearly 60 years, is the Great Uniter of the American modern tradition — combining experimental impulses with flawless technique and eclectic musical taste ranging from European classics to in-house geniuses.

For decades his arrival at City Center, usually accompanied by a live orchestra, heralded spring in New York. This season he's moved the troupe to Lincoln Center, performing in the plush precincts of the theater usually occupied by New York City Ballet and using taped music.

The engineers were still working out the details as "Cloven Kingdom," a Taylor masterwork from 1976, unfurled in full evening dress; the hybrid score, a blend of Corelli, Cowell and Malloy Miller combined by John Herbert McDowell, bounced around the speaker system, its volume shifting erratically. Corelli's 17th-century melodies burped with deliberately odd rattles, and Jennifer Tipton's lighting seemed oddly subdued. But the gorgeous dancers offered their delightfully deadpan interpretation of sexual segregation, of adults behaving like children or apes and finally of blissful union.

"The Uncommitted," a new work, seemed submerged in fog, as Arvo Part's funeral music and Santo Loquasto's designs carpeted a work of interesting spatial invention. "Beloved Renegade," a 2008 choreography celebrating Walt Whitman to Poulenc's choral "Gloria," closed the program.

Opening night offered all seats for $4, what they cost in 1962, and the house was packed. On March 14 regular prices returned and the crowd thinned substantially. Twenty-one dances, new and revived, are on display through April 1, including Taylor's much-missed, 50-year-old "Aureole," to Handel. ELIZABETH ZIMMER

L'Arc-en-Ciel, the biggest band you've never heard of

L'Arc-en-Ciel are from Japan, they have a French name and they've been known to play American-sounding hard rock, singing in English. In an e-mail interview, the group's singer, simply known as Hyde, says that this melting pot approach may be a key to the success of the band, who are playing a show at Madison Square Garden this weekend during their first trip to New York in their 21-year career.

With so many different countries' cultures that you're influenced by, which culture do you relate to most?

I guess when you get down to it, there's no particular country. Which culture has produced the most influences on your sound? All of the members were really into British New Wave and American hard rock when they were kids, so that influence is probably pretty big.

Your approach to the American market is different than most foreign bands who come over for the first time and tour clubs across the whole country. What made you decide to just do one huge show at Madison Square Garden?

I don't think that it's always the best move, to go around hitting a bunch of venues. In this case, ► Hyde, far left, says he'd rather play one huge show than tour the club circuit around the country.

our thinking was that since we could play such a huge venue, we should go for it and hope that it becomes a big thing. You are the first Japanese act to headline Madison Square Garden. This is a great honor, but are there other Japanese acts from over the years that you feel deserved to do such a thing?

I think there are, but I don't go to that many concerts myself, so I couldn't say.

Are there any American heroes of yours that you've invited to the show? If so, who? If not, what American bands would you want to invite? We can do it for you on the pages of this paper.

Thank you, but in our case we don't actually personally know a ton of people to invite. If we're talking about bands we like, there are way too many! We'll try to do the best show we can, so those guys don't make us look bad.

Black-and-white worldview falls flat

RE: "TWO-STATE SOLUTION FOR LEFT AND RIGHT": Mr. Tordoff has some rudimentary mistakes in his estimation of the supposed class war. Liberals are against the reprehensible way that sycophants with no remorse rape the planet, start religious and economic wars for their own gain, and a host of other crimes against humanity. Academics are smart enough to understand fundamental truths like climate change and evolution and that everyone will not be rich. It is not education, it is the application of that thought process. BRIAN GRAU, VIA E-MAIL

How easy it must be for Mr. Tordoff to live in such a black and white world of brave heroes and cowardly intellectuals, and no shades of gray. If only we lived in that world: The right would quickly become a plutocratic theocracy that teaches myths instead of facts in science class, where corporations run roughshod over the environment and labor, and the poor and elderly are left to die in the streets. Meanwhile, the left would have all the doctors, economists, and the technical innovators that drive our economy. PATRICK COLE, VIA E-MAIL

Mr. Tordoff's rant regurgitates many strawmen right-wingers use to misportray the left. A majority of us are not for "equality of outcome" but "equality of opportunity." We support a strong social safety net, which is not equivalent to or inclusive of punishing success and rewarding dependency. Labeling us as meddling, daft academics is more Limbaugh-esque characterization. I would advise people like Joshua to engage themselves in more than just conservative media and actually develop their own opinions of liberals instead of embracing the boogiemen created by conservative outlets. KENNETH BARLOW, BROOKLYN

Joshua Tordoff's diatribe spews the typical (false) right-wing stereotypes. There are capable managers and war heroes on both sides of the political spectrum. Warren Buffet, Larry Page, David Gefen, Barry Gordy, Steve Jobs, Jeffrey Katzenberg and Bill Gates would go to the left of Tordoff's divide. They have managed more than a "church bake sale." Liberals Dan Inouye, Bob Kerrey, George McGovern, Harry Tru-

President isn't a liberal; he's fascist

RE: "WHAT'S SO LIBERAL ABOUT MR. OBAMA?": So the president isn't a socialist liberal because he's not anti-bank, anti-bailout, anti-tax cuts and anti-gay marriage? Sure he appears more on the moderate side when he takes the establishment position so readily; sure we can ignore his associations with known communists during his college days; and let's also ignore his negligence to civil liberties (via the NDAA). So let's now call him what he really is: a fascist. HAN HAUGEN, ASTORIA

Horoscope

♈ Aries March 21-April 19. Strong determination and fierce boldness make you a force to be reckoned with. Apply this strength to a specific objective and there will be no doubt about achieving success.

♉ Taurus April 20-May 20. In your own unpretentious but bold way, you'll get far more done than those who strut and boast about their big intentions. Tenacity is your secret strength.

♊ Gemini May 21-June 20. One of your best means for achieving success is your ability to see positive elements in all situations, regardless of the negatives involved. You're likely to put this quality to good use.

♋ Cancer June 21-July 22. In order to accomplish your aims, you'll need to be far more assertive than usual. Fortunately, you'll instinctively know how much pressure to apply without looking pushy.

♌ Leo July 23-Aug. 22. You're likely to have exceptionally strong opinions, and you won't be bashful about expressing them either. Woe betide those who try to oppose your views.

♍ Virgo Aug. 23-Sept. 22. Although you're in an excellent cycle as regards earning capacity, it won't be so when it comes to handling your funds. Take care not to spend everything all at once.

♏ Scorpio Oct. 24-Nov. 22. Unless you use your time industriously and productively, your feelings of self-worth will be greatly diminished. Make sure that whatever you engage in has purpose and value.

♐ Sagittarius Nov. 23-Dec. 21. If your social life has been exceptionally boring lately, it may be time to look for new playgrounds as well as new playmates. A change would do you good, as the song says.

♑ Capricorn Dec. 22-Jan. 19. When you're unhappy, you tend to take it out on your loved ones, who accept your rude behavior with little consequence to you. However, think about what you're doing to them.

♓ Pisces Feb. 20-March 20. Temporarily shelve mundane activities and make this a profitable day by seeking out objectives that are of a financial or material nature. You could do quite well for yourself.

New Jets QB Stanton wants out of here

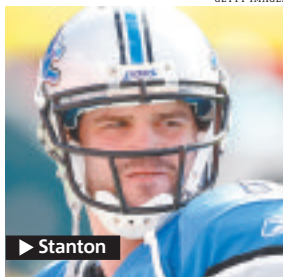

So much for getting off on the right foot.

The Jets' newly signed backup quarterback Drew Stanton — the backup without the cult following — reportedly wants out of New York already.

ESPN is reporting that Stanton, who signed last Friday for $1.25 million with $500,000 guaranteed, is requesting he be released or traded. The AP reports the Jets are now shopping the three-year pro. Any return would likely be limited to a late-round pick.

Stanton was reportedly brought in with assurances that he would be Mark Sanchez's primary backup. In a conference call Tuesday night to introduce new safety

► Stanton

63.1 Drew Stanton has a career QB rating of 63.1, but he's played in just 12 games. Six came in 2010 when his rating was 78.4.

LaRon Landry, general manager Mike Tannenbaum said Stanton would be the No. 2 and Greg Mclroy the No. 3 and the team was confident in their depth at the position.

Not so much anymore.

With the arrival of Tim Tebow on Wednesday, Tannenbaum stated Tebow would be the backup. And while Tannenbaum said no decision had been made with regards to the quarterback situation beyond that, the writing was on the wall for Stanton. ● METRO/MO

What could go wrong?

What people are saying

Everyone and their mother has commented on the Jets' trade for Tim Tebow. Metro takes a look at some of the best quotes from the 24 hours of Tebowmania in New York City:

- Jeremy Lin, Knicks guard "I'm just excited for him and to see what he does and see what happens next year. ... I'm excited he's going to be in New York."
- Tony Dungy, ex-NFL coach "We'll see if Tim Tebow can help Rex Ryan with his language? I know he welcomes the challenge!"
- John Elway, Broncos EVP "Tim left an extraordinary mark on this organization. His time in Denver will always hold a special place in Broncos history."
- Joe Namath, ex-Jets QB "I don't know anyone else who wanted him. Maybe Jacksonville. It's part of the team's operation. It's a risky deal at best."
- Kris Jenkins, ex-Jets DT "I threw up in my mouth."

Kris Jenkins:
Not a fan.

► Tim Tebow is a New York Jet ► Reaction hasn't exactly been all rainbows and sunshine ► Metro takes a look at the move and possible ramifications

Tebow plays perfect foil

Call scenario No. 1 the Tannenbaum theory.

In the Jets' minds, the plan of general manager Mike Tannenbaum, head coach Rex Ryan and owner Woody Johnson would be for Tim Tebow to play a handful of snaps per game from the Wildcat, a few more in short yardage and he and Mark

Sanchez skip off the field together holding hands and carrying a Lombardi trophy.

It is, of course, possible that Sanchez and Tebow will coexist perfectly. Tebow certainly won't cause an issue if he doesn't get playing time. But will Sanchez do the same if the dynamic shifts?

Sanchez struggles

We all know that Mark Sanchez doesn't have the strongest mentality.

The Jets offense crumbled around him at the end of last season as Antonio Holmes and Plaxico Burress staged a revolt and LaDainian Tomlinson openly complained in the media.

The biggest fear the Jets should have is that Sanchez comes out of the game and struggles. He had 18 interceptions last year and he's shown no real inclination to be a smarter decision maker in the pocket over his three seasons.

The fans won't hesitate for a moment to boo Sanchez off the field in favor of the chosen one.

Sanchez is a superstar

The scenario people seem to be ignoring most is that of Sanchez taking the next step in his maturation and becoming a legitimate star quarterback.

Sanchez played just one year at USC and is only 25 years old. Tim Tebow is actually just nine months younger than Sanchez and had three years as a college starter and another playing part time.

In Eli Manning's third year as a full-time starter he threw 23 touchdowns and 20 interceptions. Next season, the Giants won the Super Bowl.

If Sanchez is playing well, there's no reason to take him off the field for the Wildcat. And then you are paying a lot of money to a backup quarterback.

Opportunity knocks

It was all the way back in 2009 that the Eagles picked up a quarterback named Mike Vick to play a little Wildcat and backup the incumbent Donovan McNabb.

Presumably you know how that turned out. The fans clamored for Vick so much the team traded McNabb prior to the following season and Vick took over as starter.

A bigger opportunity may come if Mark Sanchez gets injured. If Tim Tebow steps in, what happens in the same city that gave rise to Wally Pipp? ● MARK OSBORNE

Welcome to New York.
But, uh, now what?

In the news

Mets killer Chipper Jones done after '12

Mets ace Johan Santana is looking healthy and all-time Braves great Chipper Jones is set to retire. Things are looking up in Queens. Jones, who is entering his 19th season in the league, announced Thursday that 2012 will be his final year. Mets fans will be happy to see him go. Jones so enjoyed playing against — and beating — the Mets, he named one of his sons Shea. ● METRO

In the news

Backup plan

New York signed a backup quarterback.

It wasn't the Jets though; it was the Giants, and the news won't be splashed across back pages.

The Giants, the defending Super Bowl champions by the way, re-signed David Carr to a one-year deal. Carr, 32, backed up Eli Manning last season as well as from 2008-'09. Carr didn't throw a single pass in 2011.
